

DEMAND PEACE WITH JAPANESE

Russian Nation Is Crushed By The News Of Defeat Of Its Fleets.

WILL THE CZAR ABDICATE AT ONCE?

Rojstvensky Is A Wounded Prisoner in Japan--Manchurian Army Is In Revolt Over The News--Demand Peace.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
St. Petersburg, May 31.—Linevitch wires the czar today the news of Rojstvensky's defeat has spread through the army in Manchuria and the soldiers are now in open revolt.
They declare the war must be ended.
Gen. Linevitch points out that under such conditions the continuation of the war is impossible.

All Russia is stunned at the new
of the completeness of the disaster.
All the ships not sunk have been captured. The crowds surround the bulletin boards and weep as they listen to the pitiful details.

Everywhere the present regime is Griscom, Tokio, wires: "Rojstvensky's skull is fractured, requiring an operation, but is not dangerous. The Japanese losses to date are three torpedo-boats sunk and three officers killed and about two hundred men killed or disabled."

To Send Report
Tokio, May 31.—Togo has authorized Admiral Nebogoff to submit to the czar the report of the battle and list of Russians killed, wounded or prisoners. The surrendered officers of the Nikolai, Apraxine and Sen Yavin will be released on parole.

Deny Report
St. Petersburg, May 31.—The admiralty denies the report the Gromboi sank off Vladivostok. A wireless

SHIP FUJI.

denounced. The Novoe Vremya demands the people take the affairs of state in their own hands. The Grand Duke Alexieff's organ, the Slovo, says Russia has had calamities enough and demands a change in the regime that will give the country peace.

Czar to Abdicate Rumors are spreading that the czar intends to abdicate. The grand dukes are to hold a meeting tonight. A conference of ministers and prominent generals was held at Tsarskoye this afternoon.

Look to America
The ministers, generals and administrators interviewed today say Russia has lost her sea power for a half century to come. They think peace will come immediately and that England and America will help modify Japan's demands and that international reforms bringing about the regeneration of Russia will be enacted.

Another Heavy Loss
London, May 31.—A Tokio correspondent express reports that the cruiser Gromoboi of the Vladivostok squadron, with nearly eight hundred men aboard, issued from Vladivostok in an effort to join the remnant of Rojstvensky's fleet, but struck a mine and sunk with all hands. It is believed that Vice Admiral Skrydloff was on board.

Still Fighting
Paris, May 31.—A St. Petersburg message was received from the cruiser last night. Vice Admiral Skryd-loff, reported on the Gromoboi, is in St. Petersburg.

Oyama Has 420,000 Men
The army intelligence department admits that Oyama has fully 420,000 men. He is known to have received 80,000 reinforcements since the battle of Mukden.

For three weeks the Japanese have been working troops around to the eastward for the purpose of turning the Russian left; but the general staff expects the real force of Oyama's attack west of the railroad.

It is believed Oyama will send Nogri in a swinging march around the Russian left in an effort to get astride the railroad as far west as Tshishar, thus isolating the whole Russian army.

Outposts Are Driven In Gushu Pass, Manchuria, May 31.—
The forerunners of Gen. Kawamura's army on the Japanese right flank, pushing forward and coming into contact with the Russian position, have driven in the Russian vanposts. The Russian general staff is shrouding all movements in mystery and is withholding the usual details of small affairs.

Everything indicates that the Japanese are ready to strike a blow and dispatch says Admiral Kamimura has engaged the remnant of the Russian fleet and fighting is still in progress.

Congratulates Togo
Tokio, May 31.—Admiral Yamamoto, minister of the navy, today wired congratulations to Admiral Togo, expressing the great satisfaction of the capture of the Russian admiral. He said the victory is most gratifying for the national cause. He expressed sympathy for the killed and wounded.

No Peace As Yet
Glasgow, May 31.—A correspondent of the Herald at St. Petersburg wires that the czar is obstinately against suing for peace.

sea is decided unfavorably to them.

Following their former tactics, the Japanese are massing heavy artillery in their center in order to liberate a main striking force for action on the flanks.

Alarmed at Gen. Mstchenko's raid, the Japanese are hastily fortifying Simulintin.

TWO SHIPS ESCAPE
Vladivostok, May 31.—Two ships alone of Vice Admiral Rojstvensky's powerful flotilla, the swift cruiser Almazra, and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozny, lie at anchor here in the curving harbor of Golden Horn, they having escaped from the fleet.

ARMY NEWS OF ALL BRANCHES OF ARMY

Officers Resign, Transports Sail and West Point Cadet News Given.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, May 31.—The President has accepted the resignation of Capt. William H. Clifford, Marine Corps, and it became effective today.
He was appointed a first lieutenant of the Marine Corps in July, 1899, and made a captain in 1902.

Washington, May 31.—The resignation of Second Lieutenant Charles H.
Fulton, Philippine Scouts, went into effect today. Lieutenant Fulton is a native of Missouri and was commissioned in the Philippine Scouts in March, 1902. Prior to that time he served seven years as private, corporal and sergeant in Troop A, 1st Regular Cavalry.

Going to Philippines San Francisco, Cal., May 31.—The transport Sheridan sailed from this port for the Philippines today carrying the officers and men of the 1st squadron of the Seventh Cavalry.

Among the officers are Brig-Gen. Jas.
A. Buchanan, recently promoted; Brig-Gen. Edward Davis, retired; Major Williams and Col. Butler D.
Pieper of the Sixteenth Infantry. Rev.
Father Joyce, recently assigned as chaplain to the 14th Cavalry, was also a passenger.

Examinations at West Point West Point, May 31.—The annual examinations of the corps of cadets will begin tomorrow and continue from day to day until completed. The board of advisors to the Military Academy, appointed by the President and members of both houses of congress arrived today. On each day of the examinations there will be outdoor military exercises by members of the first class.

by Decision of the Special Commission.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Rio Janeiro, May 31.—The modus vivendi in the boundary question between Argentina and Peru expired today. The matter has been put into the hands of a commission for investigation and nothing can be done until the report of the commission is received, which is expected to be within a day or two.

It was a brilliant affair.

MAY INCREASE THE CAPITAL STOCK NOW

Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad to Act on Proposition.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cincinnati, May 31.—A special meeting of the stockholders of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railroad was held here today to act upon the recommendation recently made by the directors to increase the capital stock from $28,700-000 to $40,000,000. The new issue will be used to pay for improvements and not for the acquisition of other properties. The remainder will be issued at future dates as needed by the company.

BIG BANK MERGER UP IN MONTREAL

Two of the Largest Banks Have Combined Under the Name of Bank of Montreal.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Halifax, N. S., May 31.—The People's bank of Halifax, which tomorrow will merge with the Bank of Montreal, today paid a dividend of two per cent on its capital stock of $1, 000,000. The terms of the merger are that the Bank of Montreal shall give to the People's Bank shareholders 4,000 shares of Bank of Montreal stock at $25, and $138,000 in cash.
Should People's Bank shareholders prefer cash they may take it reconsidering Bank of Montreal shares at $25.

PEACE CONFERENCE AT MOHONK LAKE

The Eleventh Annual Gathering of Arbitration Advocates Assembled.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., May 31.—The eleventh annual meeting of the Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration began here today, with Judge George Gray of Delaware presiding. The meeting will be continued until June 2. The purpose of the conference is the promotion of international arbitration through the education and development of public sentiment and opinion. Among the special subjects to be discussed are the significance of the North sea settlement, the proposed international conference, and the probable after-effect of the failure of arbitration treaties.
In its makeup the conference is thoroughly cosmopolitan, embracing men and women of recognized standing and ability from almost every walk of life—diplomats, government officials, jurists, educators, clergymen, officers of the army and navy, philanthropists, etc. Among the speakers will be Andrew D. White, ex-minister to Germany; Justice David J.
Brewer, ex-Senator H. G. Davis, Justice Chas. B. Elliott of the Minnesota supreme court and a number of other no less prominent speakers.

The contract has been let to E. E.
Van Pool for the erection of a house for Theodore Ottman on his farm just south of the city limits.

HYDE MAY WIN OUT IN THE EQUITABLE

Special Meeting of the Board of Directors of the Famous Insurance Society.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, May 31.—One of the most important meetings in the history of the Equitable Life Assurance society, of which James W. Alexander is president and James H. Hyde, vice-president, was held here today by the directors. The public can judge of the significance of the meeting from the fact that it began at 11 o'clock this morning instead of 3 in the afternoon, the usual hour of the sessions of the board of directors of the company. There is little definite information obtainable regarding the meeting, but it is stated by a lawyer who has been prominently connected with the affairs of the society ever since its scandal became public that as a result of the session James H.
Hyde will probably be exonerated from the charges of illegally using the company's funds which have been made against him by some of the directors. The purpose of the meeting, however, was to receive the report of the Frick investigating committee and take some steps regarding the future management of the company. That the fight between the opposing factions among the directors is being waged as bitterly as ever is evident, although some harmonizing influences are said to have been brought to bear upon the antagonists by William Nelson Cromwell, acting for a disagreeable nature can now come before the public without his consent, no matter how savagely the fight is waged beneath the surface. If James H. Hyde is exonerated, it is thought that the resignations of President Alexander and Second Vice-President Tarbell will follow.

TO PRESENT BRIDE TO HIS SOVEREIGN

Minister of Netherlands to United States Sails for His Home.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, May 31.—The minister from the Netherlands to the United States and Mme. Swinderen sailed today from Europe. Mr. Van Swinderen will present his American bride to Queen Wilhelmina during their stay abroad. She was Miss Elizabeth Glover, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Charles Glover of Washington.

ISSUE MORE STOCK FOR TWIN CITIES

Minneapolis and St. Paul Are To Have Better Rapid Transit Service.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Elizabeth, N. J., May 31.—At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Twin City Rapid Transit company held here today the capital stock was increased from $20,000,000 to $25,000-000, the additional $5,000,000 to be common stock. The proceeds are to be used in paying for extensions of the system recently authorized by the

STRIKERS TALK OF PEACE NOW

Shea Stands For A Continuation Of The Present Troubles At All Cost.

HE IS STRONGLY OPPOSED TODAY

Vote May Be Taken Upon The Question Of Constitution Of The Present Labor Troubles in Chicago.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]

Chicago, May 31.—In addition to the grand jury and the Master in chancery investigation of the teamsters' strike today conferences of labor leaders are scheduled at which peace plans will probably be discussed. It is reported the executive committee of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters may decide to take a referendum vote for a continuance of the strike.

Shea Defiant
President Shea expresses himself in favor of continuing the struggle, but it is said powerful peace forces oppose him. James Spencer, a strike-breaker, was kidnapped early this morning and taken to the south side and seriously wounded.

Thousands of Police
Two thousand policemen were detained this morning to guard the wagons, leaving only six hundred to protect the city. Two hundred were sent to the lumber district. The Employers' association announce they will send out three thousand wagons today.

Tunnel at Montrose, Col.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]

Montrose, Col., May 31.—The rescue party is expected to reach the twenty-seven entombed workmen in the Gunnison tunnel at ten o'clock this morning. It is believed several are dead. The body of an unknown workman was discovered in the tunnel this morning. But before it could be removed another cave-in buried it.
Two workmen in the timbers were heard calling for help. The entombed men are 330 feet from the mouth of the tunnel and directly under the bed of Cedar creek. Their names are unknown.

Spoke at Afton: Superintendent H. C. Buell was the Memorial day received. The exercises were largely attended.

CLASH HORNS AS TO SEVERAL BILLS NOW

Assembly and Senate Do Not Agree on Minor Details of Important Legislation.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]

Madison, Wis., May 31.—The assembly took issue with the senate on three bills this morning, refusing to concur in the amendments to the bill to tax the trust companies the same as banks, the senate desiring to raise the tax slightly and the assembly being determined to change from a license fee to an ad valorem system; on the bill stipulating the duration of service and compensation of county supervisors of assessment, the assembly reducing the time and the senate standing with the tax commission; and the bill strengthening the corrupt practices of law, the assembly standing for a strong measure and the senate desiring a mild one.
The bill to appropriate $2,500 for replica of art work by Alois Locher, called Columbian shield, which bill has been pushed by his widow, was the occasion for a motion for a call

STORM DESTROYS OHIO HOTEL

Schoolhouse, Residences and Barns Are Razed and Trees Uprooted.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio, May 31.—

The Forest hotel was partially destroyed by a storm Monday night.

The Rowland schoolhouse and five residences were almost demolished.

Scores of barns were razed and thousands of trees uprooted, one falling over the track of the Hocking Valley as a passenger train was passing, causing much damage to the coaches.

A dozen cars, blown onto the main track of the Fort Wayne road, was struck by a train and demolished.

CIRCUS PLEASED MANY THOUSANDS

FOREPAUGH-SELLS GAVE AN EXCELLENT EXHIBITION.

MAY MOVE TO JANESVILLE

This Seems To Be the Sentiment Among the Men Who Control the Destiny of the Circus.

From the moment the first circus train of the Forepaugh-Sells Brothers pulled in about four in the morning until the last car was loaded late last night the circus employees were the envy of the small boy and won the admiration of the older people who watched the maneuvers from start to finish. Aside from the fact it was a circus, the citizens of Janesville took particular interest in this show from the fact that there is an excellent prospect of Janesville being the future winter quarters of the aggregation. The report that the presence of three of the Ringling Brothers in the city yesterday was to decide this question, started the report that Janesville had been definitely settled upon, but this proved erroneous. From Ringling is with the circus all the time and the other two—Charles and Alfred—happened to be in Baraboo and ran down for the day. In fact, they refused to discuss any proposition yesterday with a committee of business men who waited upon them.

Not Ready Yet
All of the gentlemen connected with the circus were very polite when inquiries were made as to the possible decision and while they expressed a favoritism for Janesville, stated that they had not made up their minds as yet and that when any decision was reached the Janesville business men would be notified. Mr. Alfred Ringling stated that several good propositions had been made by neighboring cities, but that the circus owners were not looking for a circus. It is understood that personally, Mr. Ringling thinks Janesville an ideal place and a talk with many of the employees gives rise to the opinion that Janesville will be the fortunate city. Its proximity to Chicago and its location near Baraboo, where the Ringlings' quarters are, make it convenient to the Ringlings who are in business control of the circus and make it probable that the Bower City will be chosen. Excellent grounds for the winter buildings can be easily found should they come.

The Menagerie
The menagerie of the circus is most excellent. A herd of African and Indian elephants, from Peter, who really talks when he wants peanuts, to Mahdi, the cross little animal who is the terror of the keepers, this essential end of the circus is not forgotten. These elephants are all performing ones and do stunts in the ring that are marvelous. As they trot in with their trunks grasping the tail of the elephant in front and wheel and wait to the band music, they always bring down the house. There are also the camels—big fellows, that look like the ships of the desert. There are two old ones in the show that look to be in the last stages of life. In fact, it is said by one of the camel men they can not live but a few weeks longer. They are well fed and cared for and required to do no work except to walk from the train to the tent and back. The performing seals, part of Professor Webb's famous troupe, twelve in all, are really the most interesting animals exhibited. They seem to have almost human intelligence and perform all sorts of wonderful tricks on the platform in the circus ring, tossing a ball from nose to nose being but a sample of what they can do.

The Monkeys
One large cage of monkeys, big and little, old and young, attracted many of the grown-ups and all of the children. When they were fed a bushel basket of chopped bananas and oranges their antics were most grotesque. The four polar bears headed by the savage old Denoon and his wife were the first specimens of their kind ever shown in Janesville. They are fed on fish and meat, about equal proportions, and are given a scrub down each day. Then there were tigers and leopards and one family of lions, a fine old fellow and two females. While the ring performance was on his Majesty took a nap and his snores roused all the rest of the menagerie to anger so that his nap was brief.

The Circus Proper
The circus proper, the ring performances, were most excellent. The opening parade barely over the bands began playing first the French Marches and in marched the French soldiers, then followed "God Save the King" by a red-coated band, and the English red coats arrived. "Wearing of the Green" brought forth a green-coated Irish squadron and thus it continued until the two rings were full of the different nationalities, which appeared as their national music was sung. As a climax "Dixie" and "The Star Spangled Banner" brought in detachments of the Boys in Gray and the Boys in Blue, soldiers and rough riders and Columbia with all her glory, making a beautiful tableau and climax to the production of the

"THANK YOU," SAY SMOKERS
All Who Love a Cigar Appreciate Smith Drug Co.'s Introduction of Chicos.

It is reported that the smokers in Janesville are going to present a testimonial to Smith Drug Co. for assuming the agency of Wadsworth Bros'. Chicos, a high grade Havana filled cigar that sells for a nickel. Smith Drug Co. say they are perfectly satisfied, though, with the appreciative "thank you's" they have had from lovers of a good cigar to whom they have recommended the Chico. It is one of the best smokers in their show case, and sells at a price so low that any one can afford to smoke it.

The price, however, is not the reason why our leading lawyers, bankers and business men call for the Chicos. They buy it and smoke it because it is a good cigar. Try one yourself and join the Chico Club.

"Spectacle of Panama." When the Japs appeared the tent echoed with the cheers and when Old Glory fell as a background to the whole scene it seemed as though the canvas top must fall. Then followed the ring acts in quick succession, three rings and the platforms, with innumerable prize performers and funny clowns.

The Features
The real features of the performance were the elephants in their quadrille, the performing seals, the Wolkowsky troupe of Russians in music and dancing, the O'Briens in their calico act, the Japs and their wonderful feats which delighted the audience, the Aurora Zouaves and their climbing of the high wall and their wonderful clockwork drill and the hipodrome events. Of these last the English whippet round race was exciting and the English flat race hair-raising. The usual concert followed the show. In the side show a Rock county girl held forth as snake charmer, a daughter of "Popcorn" George, Hall of Evansville. There were also several other employees of the circus who came from near Janesville and who greeted old friends during the day.

Speaks Well
It speaks well for the circus and the class of men they employ when it is understood that yesterday was pay-day and that instead of spending their money in drinking and other ways a large majority of them bought express and postal orders and sent the bulk of their earnings to their families at home.

WISCONSIN STATE LEAGUE

Wausau, Wis., May 31.—Oshkosh and Wausau played two games here Decoration Day and broke even. The feature of both games was the surprising of Hassman, who gave Wausau the worst of it all around. In the morning game Hassman ordered Schriener, shortstop for Wausau, to the bench for protesting a clearly unfair decision. Oshkosh won the afternoon game through a gift by Umpire Hassman. Lee of Wausau made a home run, but Hassman called him out without watching him around the circuit, which robbed Wausau of the game. Wausau won the first game by a score of 7 to 6 and lost the second by a score of 3 to 2 in eleven innings. Score:

La Crosse 4-3, Beloit 3-1

La Crosse, Wis., May 31.—La Crosse defeated Beloit in two well-played games before good crowds Decoration day, and strengthened its hold on first place. Beloit profited by the home team's error in the first game, but was nosed out of a victory by timely hitting near the finish. Both pitchers did good work. Attendance, 500. The afternoon game was won by La Crosse by consecutive hitting in the sixth inning. Jones was effective throughout, and Mohr could not be hit successfully excepting in one inning. Attendance, 1500. The scores:

FASHION NOTES.

After all it is not so difficult a matter to make a summer bodice attractive, if one only knows how. But to know how, that's the question. To one philosophic maiden said, yes, I could make an almsip if I only knew how.

Yet the art of successfully decorating a smart bodice is not quite so difficult. In the first place the woman who wears the most successful blouses is the one who knows her figure—its weak points and its strong ones. If she is painfully thin and attenuated, she aschews the plain effects which depend upon elegant handwork for their beauty and which the well rounded figure sets off so attractively. Instead she clings to the fishus, Grecian borders, fancy yokes with scalloped ruffles bordering them and the like, all of which lend themselves charmingly to the fashionable embroideries, laces and other modes of embellishment.

Fullness and breadth can be given the shoulders by means of plaits and tucks at the same time employing one of the smartest of bodice decorations. This is exemplified in a dimity frock, pale green in tint, and trimmed with medallions of delicate embroidery. From the shoulders to the front the waist is laid in groups of graduated tucks, four to a group and each group separated by three of the embroidered medallions running vertically upon the front. This scheme continues from shoulder to shoulder as the blouse fastens at the back. This decoration is made to form a yoke by bands of lace insertion which are inset at a point even with the longest of the tucks and stitched up and down—according to the way in which the tucks are graduated—forming an irregular outline that is very pretty.

The shirred blouses, that is the ones that are shirred all over in puffed effect, are not a success from an economical standpoint, but they are both pretty and charming for slender figures. Besides requiring a large amount of material in their making, they are most difficult and expensive to launder.

Plumper figures which do not take well to the more plentiful decorations of the real fishu, have it stimulated by lace insertions and embroidery. Such figures also look well in the bolero and Eaton effects outlined with embroidery with guimpes and yokes of linen to be worn separately.

Nothing is prettier for a well-rounded figure than the new princess lingerie blouse, which is close-fitting from the bust-line down to the girdle, with a yoke of embroidery, or tucks and lace artistically arranged to form a yoke. Gradually the smart counteries are getting away from the rounded yoke which has had its full share of popular favor and the straws which indicate the direction of the wind of fashion go toward Y-shaped effects and square cuts which can be worn with or without detachable guimpes.

Of costumes it is said that if a woman can have one elegant evening toilette, let it be black; of bodices the rule is that if she can afford only one handsome design, let it be white; for white is far and away the favorite for the blouse of elegance. Not infrequently, however, does it have its touch of black, but the preference is not given to any particular color, for the chow of pale green, the rosette of lavender, or bow of blue, each has its place and lends variety to the bodice.

Some of the blouses designed of heavy white lace over chifon are trimmed with black passementerie ornaments and the effects are much more elegant to see than to describe. Nor is it as matronly as one would suppose. The passementerie has, usually, a background of chifon which gives it a positively youthful effect, to say nothing of its softening element.

The newest tint about which much is written is Alice blue. It has a formidable rival in Cecelid pink, which is a most rich and delicate tone named in honor of the bridelet of the crown prince of Germany, but the blue is so dainty that it promises to maintain its place in fashionable favor when the craze for the pink disappears, which is likely to be simultaneous with waning popular interest in the approaching royal nuptials.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Wednesday, May 31, 1865.—The public schools of this city will be closed tomorrow.

O. J. DEARBORN, President of Board.

No Paper Tomorrow.

In accordance with the proclamation of the President, we shall abstain from labor in our office tomorrow, and no paper therefore will be issued.

There will be religious services at the Presbyterian church tomorrow morning at half past ten. Sermon on the Doom of the Rebellion.

Piscatorial.—A party of our citizens starts tomorrow afternoon for a trip northward to enjoy a little recreation. We have a suspicion that the speckled trout will suffer. No, thank you, gentlemen, don't send us a barrel of the fluky luxuries; a small keg of them will do.

Deaths.—We repeat that notices of deaths not exceeding five lines will be published free in The Gazette, but obituary notices must be paid for. We adopt this plan to keep our columns free from long-winded notices about people that the public generally care little for.

Jockey Club.—A number of gentlemen residing in this county formed a jockey club on the 23d of the present month, and are going forward to perfect their arrangements for making the exhibition of horses a permanent feature of the sale day's so happily inaugurated on Friday last. Those who desire to join this organization have an opportunity of doing so.

The News.

A witness testified yesterday in the conspiracy trial that he heard Jeff. Davis sanction the assassination of President Lincoln, and expressed a desire to have the same fate overtake Andrew Johnson and Mr. Stanton.

Chinch Bug.—Reports from the rural districts differ as to the presence of these little pests. One gentleman told us yesterday that he had visited a number of wheat fields in different towns, and was unable to discover any bugs. From sections of Rock, Green and Walworth counties we hear of their presence already, and fears are expressed as to what they are going to do. Although crops are now doing grandly and look well for the time of the year, a good shower would not come amiss, but greatly accelerate vegetable growth, and put wheat and barley past the possibility of danger by the bug.

Timely. Baseball Gossip

Byram, Princeton Pitcher, Is Star of College World. Career of George La Chance—Manager Clark Griffith Makes Prophecy, Modestly Claiming Pennant.

All indications are that Herbert Byram, the Princeton university ball team's pitcher, is the star of the colleges this year. Byram will do for Princeton, it is believed, what Walter Clarkson did for Harvard.

Byram is but a freshman, yet he pitches with an effectiveness that will send him to the top of the ladder in

HERBERT BYRAM, PRINCETON PITCHER. another year. He has splendid control of his shoots, which are equal to those of many a professional box artist. Byram is a native of Pittsburgh, where he was formerly prominent as an amateur ball player.

The release by the Boston Americans of George La Chance, the veteran first baseman, has proved a popular topic of conversation. La Chance is one of the best first sackers in the country and will have no difficulty in finding another berth.

George La Chance is a native of Waterbury, Conn., where he was born Feb. 15, 1870. He there learned to play ball and was the receiving end of the famous Klobedanz-La Chance battery that was first heard of in a game against the Boston Brotherhood team at Nantuxatuck in the spring of 1890. In 1891 this battery went to Portland of the New England league.

The season of 1893 found La Chance with the Wilkesbarre team. His release was purchased by Brooklyn in the fall of 1894, and he remained as first baseman of that club until the amalgamation of the Baltimore and Brooklyn clubs, when he was sent to Baltimore. Then Baltimore went out and La Chance was transferred to the Cleveland club of the American league.

La Chance went to the Boston American team from Cleveland in 1902 and played with Boston until recently. Though anything but a showy player, he is a wonder in fielding bad throws and in handling balls where a long reach is required and is sure on fly balls. His batting is hard and timely.

"The American league pennant will be our hunting this year," says Captain-Manager Clark Griffith of the New York Highlanders. "And the spit ball will do it. Our pitchers have that down the best of any, and I don't see how they can stop us."

"If the spit ball should be solved by the batsmen Jack Chesbro has another curve that will give them something to think about. Jack's latest ball is called dead man's curve. He has been trying to master it for a long time, and, in fact, overwork with the dead man's curve put his arm to the bad, and he is not able to work just now.

"This pennant race is fiercer than ever now. On account of Washington's weakness last year a team could get a breathing spell once in awhile when games were scheduled with them, but now the strain never relaxes, and every time we play a game it is with a crack-jack team, and everybody has to be on edge all the while."

DRYNESS OF ATMOSPHERE.

Health Endangered by Lack of Moisture in the Air of Many Houses.

Indoor humidity has again been discussed by a member of the medical profession, who takes the stand also that the excessively dry air of houses during the heated season is injurious to the human organization, because the dry air, passing over the membranes of the respiratory passages and the skin calls for an enormous output of the fluid elements of these tissues, says the Engineering Record.

This physician, Dr. Henry Mitchell Smith of Brooklyn, N. Y., holds that this leads to glandular overactivity and its consequent evils, but he does not offer the specific proofs which, it has been asserted, are lacking to show that direct deleterious effects are thus produced. In his contribution, which was made to the Brooklyn Medical society, he mentions, however, some tests he had conducted with a radiator having an experimental moistening apparatus attached, and he obtained results which concur with general beliefs as to the relation of the humidity and temperature.

He found that with a relative humidity never below 50 per cent, nor above 70 per cent, 70 degrees Fahr. was uncomfortably hot, 68 degrees was warm and 65 degrees comfortable. It was determined by repeated experiments that a temperature of 65 to 68 degrees and a relative humidity of 60 per cent, produced the most comfortable conditions, which were in marked contrast to a temperature of 72 degrees, with a relative humidity of 30 per cent. The former felt warm and balmy, he said, and the latter, notwithstanding the higher temperature, chilly and dry and apt to leave the impression of draftiness. He did not describe the moistening apparatus, but said that the mechanism was such that the control of the temperature and of the moisture was independent.

An acquaintance met Horace Greeley one day, and said: "Mr. Greeley, I've stopped your paper." "Have you?" said the editor. "Well, that's too bad." And he went his way. The next morning Mr. Greeley met his subscriber again, and said: "I

THE TARIFF QUESTION.

Henry Clews, the New York banker, in sizing up condition in Wall Street, thus discusses the tariff question:

"The most unsettling feature in general trade is the tariff question.
That will inevitably come up for active discussion in a special session in October next owing to the determination of the administration to press that issue. This, of course, will be disturbing, since it is quite likely to defer business initiative and restrict transactions to immediate necessities until it is known what the outcome will be. It is somewhat premature, however, to anticipate any general tariff revision. Very strong resistance is likely to develop against any such policy, and the cry of 'Let well enough alone' will doubtless be a very strong argument against serious tariff revision. Such actions as will be taken will more probably be confined to remedying the actual abuses of the tariff, and neither the administration nor congress will dare to withdraw protection from any industry that is really dependent upon the protective system. There are some industries which are taking unfair advantage of the tariff; others which are not dependent upon it in any degree, and others again that will be positively benefited by such modification of the schedules as will give them cheaper raw materials and a chance to enlarge both home and domestic markets. If revision could be carried out on these lines there would be no reason to fear tariff actuation during the autumn months.
How far the tariff situation will be governed by a growing government deficit and the necessity of providing more revenue remains to be seen; and the withdrawal of funds from the government depositaries in consequence of this deficit may after a while become a factor in the money market."

The fact is frequently overlooked that it costs in round numbers $500, 000,000 a year to support the government and yet no direct tax is made on the people. Where does the money come from? It doesn't grow on bushes, neither is it hid away in safety vaults to meet demands when needed.

The most of it comes from two sources, and in the end is paid by the people, yet the tax is so equitably distributed that it is never regarded as a burden.

The money collected through the channel known as internal revenue, comes very largely from tobacco, cigars, whiskey, beer and luxuries of this class. They do not belong to the necessaries of life and the man who uses them never thinks of complaining about the revenue tax.

When it became necessary to provide an emergency fund to meet the expenses of the Spanish-Cuban war, this list was increased and a stamp duty added to the cost of several articles, but there was practically no complaint, and when the war claim was met, these emergency duties were removed.

The money which comes into the treasury through custom house duties is the tariff fund. This is collected from a long list of articles, but so wisely distributed that a large percentage of it falls on the luxuries, rather than the necessities of life. This means that the burden of tariff taxation falls on the wealthy people of the country.

The tariff performs a double mission. It provides money in liberal amount for government expenses, and it protects American industries by keeping out of the country a class of goods made by cheap foreign labor, which if admitted would drive out of business American factories, as was the experience during the last Cleveland administration.

There is a class of people in this country who are never satisfied.
When they are not tinkering with the tariff they want to tinker with the railroads or something else.

While the tinker is a handy man in the community he is never large enough to spread over much territory.
The tariff tinker is no exception to the rule. Some changes in the schedule may be needed to meet changed conditions, but the principle of the tariff should not be disturbed. It has built up American industries, protected American labor, and given the nation an unparalleled era of prosperity.

THE TRAGEDY OF WAR.

The tragedy of war is always overlooked in the first flush of a great victory and while startling headlines announce the annihilation of the Russian fleet, but little thought is given to the poor fellows whose lives were sacrificed in the engagement.

The Russian loss is reported at from 3,000 to 6,000. This means death by drowning, explosion and hand-to-hand encounter, all tragic in the extreme. It also means grief and bitter sorrow in thousands of homes.

This is the side of war which makes it horrible to contemplate. The general results may be great victories and corresponding defeat, for the two go together. It may mean much to the world at large but it means to the individual and the home sacrifice and sorrow most intensely real.

The Japanese cunning which led the Russian fleet into a trap and then demolished it, has placed Admiral Togo at the head of the list of great naval commanders.

The end doubtless justified the means, but after the history is forgotten, the memory will linger in many homes as a frightful nightmare.
War is all that has ever been claimed for it by way of hard experiences and it will be a glad day for humanity when perpetual peace dawns upon the world.

The state institutions are still suffering for money, because of the tardiness of the legislature in voting the appropriation bills. This sort of financial neglect would not be tolerated by anything but a reform administration. State employees, as a rule, are paid but a bare living and they are entitled to be paid at least once a month.

The legislature will be in session for five months. $500 is the amount of compensation or $100 a month for the present session. The member who has gone home two or three times a month and lived at a second class boarding house, won't have money enough left to buy a box of paper collars, but there's lot of glory in the job.

A little four year old girl has been sent from Germany to San Francisco without an attendant. That the child will be cared for by railway and steamship companies is not a question and she will reach her destination in safety. "The world do move" and all kinds of people travel.

The strike situation with Shea in the background is likely to improve.
This talk about a fifth of July symphonic demonstration is all right for the men who are out, but sympathy is poor capital to work on unless public sentiment endorses the movement.

The Japanese victory is complete and there seems to be nothing left for Russia but to sue for peace. It is safe to say that the terms will not be as favorable as could have been secured two months ago.

All that the city railway company needs is several miles of track as good as the block recently laid on Main street, a new equipment of cars and a more liberal patronage.

The city lighting question has been settled in a manner satisfactory to the lighting company.

PRESS COMMENT.

Chicago Record-Herald: Isn't it about time for the czar to suggest the granting of some other kind of a comsly to the Russian people?

Oshkosh Northwestern: From all reports that naval battle proved just about as big an exhibition as was advertised.

Exchange: John L. Sullivan's fighting days are gone, but his terrible mouth goes fighting on.

La Crosse Chronicle: Berry is dead, Pulford is dead. But the woman in the case is alive and free.

Chicago Tribune: La Follette seized his pen, with stern and resolute mien. Said he, "I am for men!" And he vetoed the voting machine.

Evening Wisconsin: "What Time Is It In Tokio?" asks a newspaper headline. Hot time, if the Japs are letting themselves go.

Milwaukee Sentinel: For months no one has known the spot where Admiral Togo and his warships were hiding, but they were there all the time.

Buffalo Evening News: The shortage in the hop crop is not expected to boost the frogs' leg market. A friend told us this and we've got to use it. No, we don't owe him money.

Chilton Times: Why should the present Wisconsin legislature adjust? The state seems to have the price to maintain a continuous vaudeville performance. The acrobatic feats now being performed at Madison are something fierce, but draw fair sized crowds.

Wauwatosa Herald: Memorial day will not cease to be commemorative of the nation's dead, but year after year, as personal recollections fade and actors of the tragedy withdraw from the scene, it will become more and more an occasion for flagging patriotism and re-enforcing the loyalty of the faithful.

Merrill (Iowa) Record: We were misinformed last week regarding the birth of an heir at the Cal Brown home. It is impossible to run down every bit of local news that goes into the paper, consequently mistakes will sometimes occur. This mistake cost us a good 10-cent cigar.

Atchison Globe: An Atchison saloon keeper is well known for his politeness.
It is said that two drunken men went into the saloon and got into a fight. The saloon keeper sent for the patrol wagon and, as the men were being loaded into the wagon, the polite saloon keeper said:
"Well, call again, boys."

Racine Journal: And it is said that the people of Madison are up in arms over the senate's approval of a bill submitting to a vote of the people the selection of the location of the state capitol. The matter has now passed from the phase of a joke to a solemn reality as it is said there is a great probability of the assembly following the action taken by the senate.

Milwaukee News: Now that he has expressed his opinion of the lobby, Governor La Follette should find the way clear to say a few words in behalf of the pledge to strengthen the anti-pass law, which was found "defective" immediately after it was discovered that members of his administration were downing "the corporations" by serving as their attorneys and getting free rides.

Judge: Why this furore concerning frenzied finance and great deals? Do not the moderns sink into oblivion beside Noah? Was he not the greatest financier the world ever knew?
This is what we are told. He foresaw the going under of the banks and withdrew his stock to a safer place.
He was able to float his stock with the whole world in liquidation. When the banks resumed he handed in his stock without reserve, saying: "It will increase and multiply." And finally he "made good."

BUILDING NOTES

The repair work on the insane hospital building at the county farm made necessary by the recent fire is being done by George F. Burriago.

The preliminary plans for the stair-hall addition and the remodeling of the Lincoln school building, which will be done this summer per the order of the Chief of the Fire Department, are being drawn at the office of Architect Hilton. Work will probably be commenced about July 1. It will be completed by September 10, shortly before the reopening of school.

The Bostwick building at the corner of Park and Court streets, occupied by the wholesale saddlery firm of Bassett & Bachlin, will be remodeled this year. The contract has been let to Kelly & Mason and calls for a one-story addition. This will greatly enlarge the floor space of the factory and relieve the other floors now congested.

KICKERS' KOLUM

To the Editor: The subscriber who wrote the article in last week's Kol-um in the Gazette, in relation to the young man residing in the southern part of the town of La Prairie who knocks out his horses' eyes, did wrong in not publishing the name of this creature. For the sake of the poor animals so unfortunate as to belong to such a brute, his name should be published far and wide, and he should be punished to the full extent of the law. Such a fiend in human form should be put where he can do no man harm. Hanging is too good for the wretch. Cruelty of all kinds to horses is constantly seen on our streets, and strong efforts should be made to punish such conduct. Any person who sees such brutality, and who does not reprove, or report it to the humane society, is just as guilty as the offender. Let the humane and civilized elements of this city see to it that these brutal drivers and owners of horses receive the punishment they so richly deserve.
"A LOVER OF HORSES."

Editor Gazette: There has been considerable controversy in the past regarding the indiscriminate use of old paving-blocks and the possibility of contagion and disease from them.
The physicians of the city have given their opinions at various times with regard to the general liability from the use of these disease-laden blocks for fire-wood and it appears to me that the city health-officer should put a stop to the practice of giving this material away by the street contractors for the sake of getting rid of them. The city could well afford to haul them away and burn them up rather than run the chance of serious illness which might result from their use by private individuals. A little precaution may save a life or two.
"SANITATION."

CURRENT NEWS NOTES.

Edward Doheny Fined: Edward Doheny who created a scene on South River street yesterday and is reported to have resisted the police, was brought into court this afternoon and fined $6 and costs.

Fined for Drunkenness: In municipal court this morning the following sentences were passed for drinkenness and disorderly conduct: Frank Kiesb, $2 and costs; E. Hovland, $4 and costs; William Waldon, $3 and costs or eight days in jail; Albert Dorsey, five days in jail and $3 and costs. Sentence was suspended on Dorsey with the understanding that he should leave the city and go to Beloit. Waldon could not pay his fine and will spend a few days in the jail.
The first two mentioned promptly produced the money.

Tripped, Broke Leg: While walking on North Main street last evening Hugh Miller fell and fractured his leg. It is reported that he was tripped by a companion or friend who was under the influence of liquor.
Medical aid was summoned and he was taken to his home on Fifth avenue.

Inquest in Progress: The coroner's jury impaneled to pass upon the death of T. Burns who was asphyxiated in the Grand Hotel is in session as the paper goes to press. The verdict will undoubtedly be suicide and an order will probably be given to have the body interred. Evidences were found upon examination that the man was afflicted with a chronic disease and many believe this was the real cause of his taking his life.

JAPAN WANTS PEACE

early stage of the battle which began in the Korea strait on Saturday, and headed, in obedience to orders, with full speed to Vladivostok.

Up to 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon no other vessels of the Baltic fleet had yet arrived, and the signal stations at Askold and Rimskykorsakof islands reported none in sight.

Officers of the Almaz and Grozny say that both fleets had already sustained terrible losses when the Almaz and Grozny broke through the hostile line.

Of the Japanese two battleships had gone down before their eyes and two cruisers, their sterns high out of the water, seemed ready to plunge, foremost to the bottom of the sea.

Russians in Sad Plight.
The Russian fleet, they say, was even in a sadder plight. Rojestvensky's flagship, the Kniaz Souvaroff, and its sister ship, the Borodino, and the battleships Oslabya and Orel were utterly destroyed, and when the fog closed down and hid the scene of battle from sight northward of the speeding ships, a third great Russian battleship, the Alexander III, seemed in sore distress, but limping northward, putting up a valiant fight against thronges of torpedo boats, and still continuing its attacks on the cruisers of the island empire. Torpedo boats were also clinging round the other ships of the fleet like angered wasps, separate flotillas darting in again and again to launch their bolts.

The Almaz, which arrived at its anchorage here Monday evening, bears scars of the battle. The miz-zen mast is shot away, and one of its smoke stacks is pierced by a shell.
But the destroyer Grozny, though engaged for several hours in a running fight at short range with a large Japanese destroyer, shows no signs of the fray. After his commander, Capt.
Andrifski, had been wounded and an officer and three men had been killed, the Grozny succeeded in sinking its opponent with a lucky placed shot, and reached Vladivostok without further adventure.

PAUL MORTON TO

THE QUIT CABINET

Secretary of the Navy is Said to Be Slated for Presidency of Interborough Rapid Transit Company.

New York, May 31.—Secretary of the Navy Paul Morton is to accept the presidency of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, according to the information of men prominent in financial circles. The report was that he had practically accepted the place with a long contract and a large salary.

Mr. Morton is to resign from the cabinet within the next few months.
He has been in New York in consultation with men prominent in financial and street-railway circles. The Interborough company is controlled by August Belmont and it runs the Manhattan elevated and subway lines.

Mr. Morton announced more than a week ago that he intended quitting the cabinet and getting back into private life. It was said at the time he made this announcement that he was to become identified with the Gould steam railroad interests, but this was denied.

Paul Morton, as vice president of the Santa Fe Railroad company, made a great reputation for himself as a harmonizer and a business getter.

Officials of the Interborough company, who were asked about the report, refused to confirm or deny it.
Secretary Morton in Washington would say nothing.

Chicago Record-Herald: If Japan were fighting any other nation than Russia she might now be certain that peace would be asked of her.
But who can predict what course the proud, sullen, totering autocracy will take? To abandon Vladivostok to its fate, to withdraw the Russian army into the heart of Siberia, to look solidly year after year toward revenge is a policy not impossible. Not the wisdom of peace, but fear of the growing people at home will be most apt to determine the answer. It will be well for Russia, well for Japan, well for the world, if peace now can be restored. More years of the war will be a festering wound to every nation.

Returned the Salute.

A traveler who visited the small Siberian town of Kansk tells how surprised he was by an incident in the gathering rose as one man and returned the bow in the most polite manner.

Home Health Club

LA PORTE, IND.

TAPE WORM.

I have had a number of letters from various parts of the country requesting information regarding the Home Health Club method of home treatment for the removal of tape worm.

It has always been my custom to teach as fully in regard to such things as possible, so that those who wish to use the home treatment may do so with full and complete knowledge of the cause, as well as symptoms and method of cure, as possible. In this way but few mistakes are liable to occur.

There are three varieties of tape worm that may live and thrive in the human intestinal canal, and attain an enormous size and cause disagreeable symptoms. The embryos of tape worm may enter the body with the food, especially raw meats, and may be derived from various animals, especially hogs and dogs.

Taenia Solium is the most common form of tapeworm, and its most frequent means of entering the system is with meaty pork. Its head is very small (like a pin-head), and is eight-sided, having four suckers by which it clings to the intestinal mucous membrane. In front of these suckers will be seen two rows of a dozen or more minute claws. The neck is very thin, and about an inch in length, and following it are numerous segments which make up the great part of the worm. They may be very numerous, and in all amount, to ten feet or more in length. Each segment is flat and of a whitish appearance; new segments are constantly developed, and the oldest one is farthest from the head and may be expelled, while the others remain. Each segment has both male and female organs of generation, and the eggs are discharged in large numbers.

A developed tapeworm may remain in the intestinal canal for a long time without giving evidence of its existence, and may not be definitely recognized until segments have been passed. As a rule there will be nervousness, dilated pupils, paleness, evidences of failing nutrition, uneasiness through the chest and abdomen, and symptoms of intestinal catarrh, and sometimes diarrhoea. There may be frequent faintness and dizziness.

No specific treatment should ever be undertaken for the removal of tapeworm until one is positive that the worm is there, and the only way this can be determined with accuracy is by finding segments of it in the stools. The following method of removing tapeworm will prove effective: Fast for two or three days, on a diet of salt fish and milk; take, on the evening of the last fast day, a large dose of Epsom salts; next morning, take, 15 minutes apart, half a cupful of strong and hot decoction of pomegranate root bark half a pound to the quart and a pint of water, and boil 20 minutes. A lemon may be sucked while this is being taken; four half cupfuls are necessary, and it must be hot to avoid nausea.

After the decoction is taken allow the patient to lie quiet for an hour. During this period there may be considerable pain and discomfort throughout the abdomen, and dizziness and headache. Then administer, in capsules, half a drachm of etheral extract of male fern, and in an hour repeat the dose. If the bowels have no tendency to move within two or three hours, a large dose of castor oil should be administered. When the bowels do move, the patient should sit upon a vessel well filled with warm water, and if discharged may be readily cleaned and examined. If the head is not seen, the effectiveness of the treatment cannot be established; but it should not be repeated for several months, or only after segments have shown themselves. Pumpkin seed oil, an ounce, in an emulsion of milk, is recommended, but is not so effective as the above.

Another species of tapeworm differing in several particulars from the ordinary variety spoken of as "Taenia Solium," is called Bothriocephalus Latius. Its length may be enormous; specimens over 70 feet long have been recorded. The segments are broader than they are long, and the head, instead of being eight-sided, is flat and oval, and has a fissure on either side to take the place of the four suckers of the taenia solium. The eggs have a valve at one end, and they develop in water and are eaten by fishes, and thus the embryos are set free and get into the stomachs of human beings. The symptoms produced by this worm in the human alimentary canal are the same as those of the taenia solium, and its expulsion is accomplished in a similar manner. Tapeworms very seldom remain in the intestines over four months without discharges of segments taking place.

CLUB NOTES.

Mazon, Ill.—Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: I have long been interested in your lectures, and believe that yours is the right, the simplest, most natural method of treatment. As others have given their mite, I will tell of a simple remedy.

My year-old babe had a badly cankered mouth last winter, so that he could not eat. Borax-alum-honey washes failed to relieve. Powdered golden seal, touched lightly to the sores, gave relief the first application, and by the third had almost cured him. Another time he could retain nothing on his stomach. A little powdered magnesia in his milk soon cured this. Hoping this will help some young mother, I am, yours very truly, E. W.

The above simple remedies are very good for the difficulties mentioned.

They are perfectly harmless in any event. Such suggestions as these are always gladly received, as they are always in demand.

Iowa.—Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: As cerebro-spinal meningitis, or "spotted fever," is so prevalent this year, and especially as it is in most cases fatal, will you please give your method of treatment, as I have great confidence in your skill. Very respectfully, Mrs. H. L.

The subject of meningitis is a serious one, and ought to be thoroughly discussed, but this I cannot do at the present time. According to my experience and observation, the reason that the disease is nearly always fatal is because the majority of physicians use opiates for allaying the pain and ice for the congestion. Both of these remedies are diametrically opposed to a cure. All of the symptoms and post-mortem examinations show congestion of the brain and cord, and the disease also exhibits a reduction of the nerve force. Opiates still further reduce the nerve force and ice still further increases the congestion. Therefore the use of stimulants for the nerves, such as hypophosphites, and heat, as much as can be borne—moist heat for the congestion, are necessary. A strong decoction or infusion of peach leaves and lobelia herb, used freely in connection with hot, moist applications to the back of the head and spine, will control the spasms and save the life of many patients who would otherwise die in great agony.

The disease is not contagious, but sometimes becomes epidemic and is hard to overcome because the predisposing cause is unknown at this time. When the organs of elimination are in perfect health the disease need not be feared. My idea of the disease is that the inflammation of the brain is due to a lack of phosphate of iron, and chloride of potassium, causing a surplus of fibrinous matter to collect and pus on the nerves, which causes the contractions and spasms. By supplying ferrum phos. and nat. sulph. the disease can be quickly cured.

Ishpeming, Mich.—Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: I am a regular subscriber to this paper and wish you would please tell me what to do for my mother, who is now just about able to walk around the house. I will describe her symptoms as well as I possibly can. She is 59 years old, about five feet tall, and quite stout; weighs about 150 pounds. Complaints of indescribable pains in the lower part of her back and abdomen, sometimes a lump swells up on each side of the neck and across the shoulders at the base of the neck. She has a good appetite, but as she has not any teeth (her teeth were extracted on account of neuralgia) it is impossible for her to chew her food, and it makes her complain of fullness after eating. The doctors here have treated her for rheumatism and kidney trouble, but without any effect. I have tested her urine by letting it stand 24 hours and find that there is a slight sediment at the bottom on standing. Have been telling her to eat less and leave the coffee alone. Would that help her any? Towards evening her legs and ankles also swell. I have the fullest confidence in you, having read your articles in this paper, and wish you all success. Thanking you in advance, I am, yours very truly, W. G.

In regard to the condition of your mother, it would be wise for her to adopt the Home Health Club method of treatment described in the lectures, on obesity. This would reduce her flesh somewhat, and greatly increase her strength, and would help to overcome the stomach trouble. The first thing necessary, however, in order to give her health, is to go to some reliable dentist and have him make a set of teeth, so that she can masticate her food. It will also be necessary for her to leave coffee out of her diet. The accumulation of gas in the stomach or fullness after eating can be temporarily overcome by the use of charcoal tablets, which you can easily procure.

I would also advise that she drink large quantities of fresh buttermilk daily; this will help to eradicate the rheumatism from her system and give her nourishment at the same time, and will benefit the kidneys.

All readers of this paper are at liberty to write for information on subjects pertaining to health. All communications should be addressed to Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind., and must contain name and address in full, and at least four cents in postage.

Not a Fall.

"Sorry to see you get such a fall," said the pedestrian to a man who had just had a tumble from the rear platform of a street car.

"Oh, I didn't get no fall," was the cheerful reply.

"But you—your tumbled off."

"Not at all. I got into an argument with the conductor and he threw me off."

"I see. And you take it good naturedly."

"Got to, old fellow. That's the sixth car I've been thrown off to-day because I wouldn't pay fare, and you see I'm getting used to it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NAVY ASSURES NATION'S PEACE

President Makes Notable Address at Unveiling of Slocum Monument

DANGER IN DETERIORATION

So Long as the United States Owns First-Class Ships, Manned by Capable Officers and Sailors, the Country Will Enjoy Prosperity.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 31.—In a stirring address at the unveiling of a big statue of Gen. Henry W. Slocum Tuesday, President Roosevelt called upon the American nation to support the up-building and maintenance of a larger navy. He said:

"If our navy is good enough we have a long career of peace and prosperity before us, and the only likelihood of trouble ever coming to us as a nation will arise if we let our navy become too small or inefficient. A first-class navy, first-class in point of size, above all first-class in point of efficiency, and the individual unit acting as units and in combination, is the surest and cheapest guarantee of peace. I should think that any man looking at what is happening and has happened abroad and in our own history during the last few years must indeed be blind if he cannot read that lesson clearly."

Promises to Use Influence. Later, in a twenty minute speech at the Naval Young Men's Christian Association, he said:

"More and more our people are waking up to the need of a navy, and in view of events happening all over the world, I think we can count on congress to continue to build up our navy. It certainly will, if I can persuade it. It is all important to have ships the best in hull, the best in armor, and the best in armament of any nation in the world."

The president opened his remarks before the association with a eulogy for the American sailor, saying:

"Officers and enlisted men of the United States navy, and you, friends of the navy—for if you are good Americans you are nothing else—I made up my mind to-day, though many invitations were extended to me, that I could not refuse to come to this building and meet you here. I don't have to tell you that I believe with all my heart in the navy of the United States, and I believe in what counts most in the navy—the officers and enlisted men, the man behind the gun, the man in the engine room, the man in the conning tower, the man, wherever he is, who is doing his duty."

Tribute to Helen Gould. "I feel we owe a peculiar debt of gratitude to those who have taken the lead in securing this building. The people of the United States should make it their peculiar duty to see to the welfare of the men on whose exertions, on whose skill and prowess, and on whose character in the time of a crisis the honor of the entire nation will depend, and a respect is due to those, especially Miss Helen Gould, who have erected this building, who have given expression to the spirit that lies behind the building up of everything of this nature."

"We are past the period when it was thought a man if he was made decent could not fight. I have had a good deal of experience in civil life, and I never found a job in civil life to which, other things being equal, I would not prefer to appoint a man who had served in the army or navy of the United States, because such a man, if he is worth his salt, has learned certain qualities which double and treble his value in any position in which he may be placed."

"We owe it to ourselves and to the nation of which we are a part to see to it that that man's capacity for good is given the fullest chance for development, to see to it that he has every opportunity to lead a wholesome and moral life."

Much Depends on Character. "Much as I believe in the work of the Young Men's Christian association, I believe in it most when it takes such shape as this. And now I say to you men that on your heavy responsibility rests, because it depends on the way you do your duty in peace whether, should ever the need of war arise, our flag shall receive credit or discredit at your hands or at the hands of your successors. I cannot too often say to civilians what every naval man knows, that in battle those who win are those who prepare best beforehand. There are men here who fought at Manila under Dewey and men who fought off Santiago."

"Now in both places we won and we won hands down. We won because the shots that hit were those that counted, because the men in our ships knew how to handle them alone and in squadron, knew how to get out of them the best that was in them, and knew how to do decent shooting. I want it to be noted that I said decent shooting, and not first-class shooting. I think most of you are doing first-class shooting now. I would be mighty ashamed of you if you were not doing better than you did."

Compliments for Gun Crews. "Nothing has given Americans better cause for satisfaction than the way target practice has gone up in the navy, until I think we can say that there are certain gun crews and certain individual gun painters who have reached as high a degree of excellence as it is possible to reach."

"The character of you men and your commanders in the navy is of paramount importance. You can do nothing, without proper training, but the training won't count for much if you haven't got the right stuff in you. I believe in the United States navy because I believe in the intelligence, the patriotism, and the fighting edge of the average man in that navy."

The president said that it often takes a tragedy to bring out the qualities of a fighting man. Referring to the explosion of the battleship Missouri, he declared:

"Lamentable and terrible though that accident was, there were things connected with it to make every American feel a sense of proud confidence in the officers and enlisted men in whom Uncle Sam confides his honor. When the accident occurred there were fully twenty minutes when every man aboard the ship knew that any moment the ship might sink. Yet there wasn't a touch of nervousness among the men, there was no sign of any one being rattled. Each man went to his quarters and staid there. You had the coolness and the fighting edge."

Good Navy Prevents War. "Too much can't be said to impress on you the all important work you are doing. Even if you never go into battle you create a spirit that makes those coming after you feel able to do their duty. The time of peace is the time to make ready for war. I don't think we will have any war if we have a good enough navy. Every first-class record you make at target practice is a positive provocation to peace."

Modesty. "It is modestly that places in the feeble hand of beauty the scepter that commands power."—Hervetus.

NEW CLAIM AGAINST BIGELOW

St. Paul Bank Files $20,000 Note Indorsed by Defendant.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 31.—The National German bank of St. Paul, Minn., has filed a claim for $20,000 against the F. G. Bigelow estate in bankruptcy which, it is believed, is but the beginning of a series of similar claims, many from the twin cities, amounting to over $1,000,000. A note for $20,000 was given by the National Electric company of Milwaukee, which is now in the hands of a receiver. It was indorsed by Frank G. Bigelow and discounted at the St. Paul bank. On March 23, it was presented for payment, but protested, as a receivership had meanwhile been established following Bigelow's big default. The note was drawn Jan. 28 to run four months.

A HEALTHY FAMILY

Is the one that can rightfully boast of pure blood. When the rich, red wine of life is coursing through the veins it imparts vigor and strength to the body and healthy action to all parts of the system. A healthy family is a wealthy family; it may be poor in worldly goods, but possessed of a priceless jewel that all the riches of earth cannot buy. A healthy family may not carry in their veins the blood of titled nobles or distinguished ancestors, but vigorous health is always an evidence of the best and purest blood, for the vital fluid contains all material necessary for the making of bone and muscle and the growth and development of the body, and upon its purity rests our chances for good health. When the body is fed upon weak, sickly blood the system languishes, growth is stunted, disease enters without hindrance, and the simplest maladies are apt to develop into serious sickness. In so many ways does the blood become contaminated that the fewest number succeed in keeping this life-giving, health-sustaining fluid in a pure and natural state. We inherit the disease-tainted blood of ancestors, parents transmit to their children such impoverished and weak blood that their lives are a continuous battle against disease, and from earliest infancy are harassed by sores and the most dreadful skin eruptions, and heirs to some old family disease. No one has a right to throw upon the shoulders of posterity a disease that might have been cured, or allow the blood to remain impure without an effort to restore it to health. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula and many of the severer forms of skin diseases are frequently inherited, and only the most thorough constitutional treatment can remove them. Bad blood is responsible for more ill health than all other causes combined; it absorbs the poisons that gather in the system, and the germs and microbes floating in the air find their way into the circulation, and old sores and ulcers, Eczema, Boils, Malaria and a long train of other diseases follow.

If you do not come of a strong and vigorous family and your blood shows evidence of impurity, nothing will so quickly bring it back to a healthy condition as S. S. S., the most widely known and popular blood remedy on the market. It purifies and builds up weak, sluggish blood and stimulates the circulation, and thus rids the system of impurities. S. S. S. contains tonic as well as blood purifying properties, and builds up the general health, improves the appetite and digestion, and tones up the nerves while ridding the blood of all poisons and humors. Nothing reaches old chronic blood troubles like S. S. S., and being a strictly vegetable remedy can be taken by old and young without any bad after-effects or injury to the system. As a blood purifier and tonic at this season S. S. S. has no superior. It puts the blood in good order, removes all poisonous accumulations, invigorates all parts of the system and prevents that debilitated, tired feeling common to this time of year. Keeping the blood healthy is the secret of all healthy families. Write us if in need of medical advice, which our physicians will furnish free of charge. Book on the blood and its diseases mailed free.

"A perfume. To be sure, there is a handkerchief, but it is unmarked and I have inquired at the stores where they sell such things, to no purpose. I told you where and when I found that bit of lace. It was upon the stairs, between the second and third floors, not a great many steps from the door of the library, and it had not been lying there any fifteen days, which is the length of time the family have been away."

"How do you know?"

"Bless you, I took it to a chemist. He assured me that to be as fresh as that perfume must have been applied within two days at the longest. It is one of those volatile preparations that soon lose their strength."

"I don't see but your chain is complete, then, so far as it goes. No man ever carried that handkerchief. It must have been dropped by a woman. The woman was seen coming away after the hour at which the crime was committed. You haven't forgotten that perfume, I trust."

"Assuredly not. If I ever get near enough to the woman who uses it—but that's the trouble, I'm afraid she's not apt to pay me a visit."

"You must visit her, then. Meanwhile, what about the threatening letter which was written to North a week or two previous to the crime?"

"Bless me! I had nearly forgotten it. But what are we to do? The decoy letter is still unclaimed at the post office."

"Put an expert on to the handwriting. Get samples of the chirography of everybody who is likely to have suffered by the operation of the firm."

The idea was so feasible that Inspector Applebee determined to put it in effect at once. He left headquarters and hurried to the office of North & Stackhouse, where he hoped to find the junior partner.

Disregarding the crape on the door, which kept away less important visitors, Inspector Applebee entered at the handle, and was quietly admitted by old Jobson, who seemed to have the outer office all to himself.

"Mr. Stackhouse?" said the inspector. The old clerk covered his eyes with his left hand and pointed to the door of the inner office. Applebee understood, the unspoken premonition of the old man.

"Poor old fool!" he thought; "he thinks the hour of the firm's disgrace has come, and that I am here to arrest his employer. Well, may I shall, some day. But not yet—not yet."

He pushed open the door and went in without ceremony. Thornton Stackhouse started up from the desk at which he had been writing, his face flushed, his manner agitated.

CHAPTER VIII.

APPLEBEE TAKEN BY SURPRISE.

The course of professional duty which brought Detective Lamm to Swampscott shore on Friday also brought to the North villa, on the day following, Mr. Kingman F. Thomas.

A young and timid gentleman, of many aspirations but too little confidence, had been deputed to call at the house for such news as might be attainable. But Moffett, in all his dignity—before he had looked at Mr. Lamm's warning figure—Moffett had repelled the novice newspaper work; and when Mr. Thomas reported himself for duty on Saturday morning, among the work to be deputed to him for the day was a visit to the North household at Swampscott.

Other newspaper duties so far encroached upon Mr. Thomas' time that it was not until evening that he took the train for Swampscott, and it was growing dark when he reached the house, which appeared almost deserted.

But Mr. Thomas' vigorous ring at the bell was answered by a pretty maid in mourning, to whom Mr. Thomas confided the fact that he was a friend of the late master of the house, and would be glad of the opportunity to see Miss Harwood.

Aunt Comfort in due time surged through the doorway of the reception-room, none too large to admit the comfortable passage of her portly form.

"This is Miss Harwood?" said Mr. Thomas.

"Yes, sir."

"Permit me to present myself. My name is Thomas. I have long known Mr. North in business circles; indeed, I may say that we met very frequently on social occasions also. Hearing of this sad event, I have called to offer my condolences, and to beg that, if my services in any capacity will be of value, you will do me the favor of putting them to the best use, though I know that, with Miss Harwood as head of the bereaved household, nothing has been left undone." This with a deferential bow.

"Thank you. Oh, thank you! A-h!"

"But I am confident that everything will be properly managed. There is Mr. Stackhouse."

"Oh, sir, you don't know. I couldn't say a word about the matter, not even to Mr. North's friend. But I will remark that circumstances have taken such a strange turn that Mr. Stackhouse will not be concerned in the funeral arrangements. The only gentleman who is doing anything is Mr. Fetridge—a friend of the family; and I am so overwrought and troubled by these terrible events, Mr.—Mr. (Thomas, thank you), that I hardly know whether to hope he can be of much service to us or not."

Mr. Thomas brought his most approved glance of sympathy to bear upon the good old lady.

"You must be calm and firm, madam," he suggested. "Remember that everything depends on you—the young ladies look to you, naturally, in a time like this."

"Ah-h-h!" ejaculated Aunt Comfort. "They are acting very strangely. Of course, I couldn't think of saying anything against them, for I love the poor girls, both of them; but I must say, sir, that it has been a trial to me to see how recklessly they have gone on here, without even listening to good advice."

"The effect of the sudden shock," hinted Mr. Thomas, respectfully. "They need a little disinterested counsel, my dear madam. Now if I could only see them as their father's friend and have a little talk with the young ladies, I am sure they would see matters in their true light and realize what a blessing it is to have such a prop and stay as you in a time like this."

"You are very kind and thoughtful, Mr.—Mr. (Thomas, thank you)—and, you being a friend of their poor dead father, perhaps the girls will heed what you say. I would not think of allowing a stranger to see them. There were two callers here yesterday. One was a police detective. Perhaps he had a right to come. But the other was only an inquisitive inspector."

"And the young ladies?" Mr. Thomas ventured to hint after a respectful pause. "This Mr. Fetridge is known to them and to you, of course—he is a friend of the family?"

"Oh, dear me, yes, sir," was Aunt Comfort's reply. "He has been a frequent visitor here for—let me see, let me see, it must be three years at the very least since we first made his acquaintance. There was a time when he didn't come so much, and we thought perhaps there had been some disagreement between him and poor Mr. North. But he began to come again to the house, just as before. Yes, Mr. Fetridge has been very friendly with both our young ladies."

"I never heard Mr. North speak of Mr. Fetridge," said Thomas. "But you know him to be trustworthy and honorable that is certainly sufficient assurance."

"Thank you, Mr. Thomas. Here I have been keeping you from the ladies. I am sure they will be very ready to see a friend of their father. And I do hope they will hear what you have to say."

"I can advise them to no better course, my dear madam, than to follow your own good counsel," said the reporter as Aunt Comfort took her parting course toward the door.

Sitting in his chair he could easily follow Aunt Comfort's progress by her ejaculations, partly natural, partly the result of her excitement of mind. As he waited her return, he thought, with pardonable self-complacency, on the facts which the good woman had disclosed, and wondered if it would be his good fortune to find the young North ladies half so ready to speak. He was aroused from his reflections by the re-appearance of Aunt Comfort at the door.

But Mr. Thomas had no thought for the excellent aunt after his eyes fell on her companions.

"This is Mrs.—I would say Mr. North's elder daughter," Aunt Comfort introduced Marion. "And this is Miss Stella, his younger child. My dear girls, this is a friend of your poor father's, Mr. Thomas. He takes a deep interest in your welfare, and will only be too grateful, he says, if he can be of some service."

Mr. Thomas inwardly congratulated himself that his was a real and not simulated interest in the case, for he felt perfectly sure that the orbs of this blonde-haired, stately reserved woman would detect in an instant any pretense.

It was to Marion that he turned, but his thoughts, not less than his sympathies, were with her delicate, grief-stricken companion.

ONE SOUL IN JAPAN

WHOLE COUNTRY IS ANIMATED WITH WARLIKE SPIRIT.No Subject of the Mikado But Is Willing to Sacrifice Life for the Beloved Land—Almost Incredible Are Stories of Devotion.

(Special Correspondence.)

Japan's real condition in war time—her fighting capacity and burning patriotism—is not apparent in Tokyo or in the other large cities; it is found in the country towns and villages. The men who are famous fighters are country men, the land owners and the sons of the land owners, the farmers and their sons, the tillers and the land tillers. It is they who produce the Japanese soldier, hard like iron, clever like a snake. Few of the people of the city have such a pure samurai spirit. Having observed this and wishing to ascertain more truly the real condition of Japan, I left Tokyo last week for the provinces, first for the province of Owari, the little town of Tsumima, which, small as it is, gave forty soldiers for Japan.

I took the famous Tokaido train. Here all the way the mountains are high and the water is clear. In the old ancient days, many a warrior was born in the Tokyo provinces. Such a greenness of trees! What a luxurious yellow in the tassels of rice plants! What a beautiful and mystic Japanese autumn! And, lo! a hundred national flags peep out. And now and then I see a triumphal arch with which the people celebrated the Liaoyang victory and still are celebrating!

Groups of children run to see the train pass, shouting "Banzai! Banzai!" But for the most part Japan expresses calmly her courage and resources. After traversing three hundred miles I arrived at Tsumima. I called at one house, which sent a boy to the front, and that boy had been killed at the battle of Liaoyang. He was a lieutenant. His old mother showed me his last letter from the front, which was wonderful in spirit and patriotism. The letter closed with the words: "If I die, mother, raise the national flag at our house entrance and shout 'Banzai!' because your son died defending your own country. And send out my younger brother immediately to the front, and make our family live up to its reputation."

Japanese Mother's Devotion.

From the house next door to this a boy had also gone, and he had returned wounded from Liaoyang. (By the way, what a tremendous number of wounded from Liaoyang battle!) Their boy was then at Nagoya hospital and they told me he was counting the days when he could return to the battlefield. Then I heard this story of the family of Masaki Nomoto who was in the reserve of the Imperial Guards. He was away on a business trip, selling goods from town to town, when the order came for him to join the colors. The family is one of the very poorest. The mother went to the district office and obtained some days of grace until her son could be informed, and as no letter could reach him she started forth herself. She raised forty-eight cents by the sale of some kitchen utensils and set forth. After long toil and the walking of many miles at length she found him at a remote village and told him of the order, and she cut off her long gray hair and gave it to her son and said, "This is my soul, my son. It will protect you. Go forth and fight bravely for your country's sake."

There is one story much repeated concerning Kichizo, the master carpenter of the village of Tsumima, and Major General Oda, father of the junior captain, who so distinguished himself at Port Arthur. Kichizo is a good hearted man, honest and genial, but his failing has always been a too great fondness for saké. He was much patronized by Gen. Oda and at one time, not long since, the general offered him of his favorite saké, saying: "Drink, my dear fellow."

"My lord, I have given up drinking," replied Kichizo.

"What! You have given up drinking?"

"Yes, my lord."

"Well! That is the last thing I would have expected of you, Kichizo. Come, take up a cup and drink to Japan's victory."

"My lord, I have stopped drinking."

"Do you mean it?"

Saki No Temptation.

"You know, my lord," replied Kichizo, "thirteen of the lads apprenticed to me, and who are under my patronage, have been called away to the front and of these eight have wives and children. It is my duty to look after these helpless ones, so how, my

Superstition also flies abroad throughout the valleys. I heard a tale of the Takachiho mountain, in the province of Hyuga, this, the holy mountain, most dear and historical where Ninigino Mikoto, the first to descend from the heavens, began to govern Japan. All the Japanese look upon this mountain with a divine respect. The mountain is high and the forest is deep and a famous Shinto shrine, Kirishima Tonja, is hidden on the Mount Kirishima. In the shadow of Takachiho. Here it was on the night of Feb. 8, the hour the Japanese navy started toward Port Arthur, that Seibei Ikeda observed a strange fire sweeping down the mighty slope of Takachiho and lighting upon the shrine. The time was near midnight. The fires were in strange, round circles, more than ten thousand of them making a chain three miles in length. Seibei hurried to the village Kirishima and woke up the villagers, and they also stood amazed before the strange fire balls. At dawn the report came from the village on the other side of the mountain that the fire balls had also been seen there and that once before they have been seen thus, at the time of the war with China. So a great meeting for prayer and incense offering was held at the shrine, the people believing that a divine spirit had appeared prophesying Japan's victory. And to-day the shrine is a sacred point of pilgrimage.

Signs Presaged Victory.

Then there is much superstition attached to the Manchurian eagle, now in the palace at Tokyo, and the tale is told all over Japan. On the 14th of March last the torpedo boat destroyer Shirataka (White Hawk) saw a huge bird alighting on a rock oag on the sea, bitten shore of Korea. One of the sailors shot it in the left wing and a boat was lowered and the great bird captured, having fallen into the water.

Dancing Girls.

It was seen to be an eagle, such as is on the imperial flag of Russia, and the sailors shouted they had caught Russia when they captured it. It was sent to Saseho, where care was taken to keep it alive, and it was then presented by a naval officer to the emperor. All the people take it as an omen of good fortune.

I visited the Tenno shrine—the village god of Tsumima. I observed a hundred lanterns lighted and many a holy fire built. There were mothers and sisters and wives of the men at the front gathered together praying for victory. The sight thrilled me with awe and respect. It is the Japanese women after all, who are at heart the wonderful fighters, although the men be heroes also. I heard a voice crying, "Teikoku Banzai!" "Victory and safe return!"

Too Accommodating.

Reau E. Folk, state treasurer of Tennessee, went to Sunbright recently to deliver an address before an organization of Sunbright business men.

Mr. Folk spoke on the importance of affability and politeness.

"Nothing succeeds," he said, "like accommodation. Be affable to your patrons. Be cheery. Be polite. If you haven't got what the people want, put them in a good humor, anyway. Maybe, then, they will accept a substitute. Maybe they will buy something out of good fellowship."

"In your desire to accommodate, though, never lie. Never deceive. Never do as did a dry goods clerk last month in the town of Tazewell."

"A little girl," Tazewell went into the shop where this clerk worked (he is no longer working there) and asked for three yards of mouse-colored ribbon.

"The clerk had not in stock the shade in question. Nevertheless he cut off and handed the little girl three yards of a deep red hue."

"Nightcap" Drink Is Good.

Superstition also flies abroad throughout the valleys. I heard a tale of the Takachiho mountain, in the province of Hyuga, this, the holy mountain, most dear and historical where Ninigino Mikoto, the first to descend from the heavens, began to govern Japan. All the Japanese look upon this mountain with a divine respect. The mountain is high and the forest is deep and a famous Shinto shrine, Kirishima Tonja, is hidden on the Mount Kirishima. In the shadow of Takachiho. Here it was on the night of Feb. 8, the hour the Japanese navy started toward Port Arthur, that Seibei Ikeda observed a strange fire sweeping down the mighty slope of Takachiho and lighting upon the shrine. The time was near midnight. The fires were in strange, round circles, more than ten thousand of them making a chain three miles in length. Seibei hurried to the village Kirishima and woke up the villagers, and they also stood amazed before the strange fire balls. At dawn the report came from the village on the other side of the mountain that the fire balls had also been seen there and that once before they have been seen thus, at the time of the war with China. So a great meeting for prayer and incense offering was held at the shrine, the people believing that a divine spirit had appeared prophesying Japan's victory. And to-day the shrine is a sacred point of pilgrimage.

Signs Presaged Victory.

Then there is much superstition attached to the Manchurian eagle, now in the palace at Tokyo, and the tale is told all over Japan. On the 14th of March last the torpedo boat destroyer Shirataka (White Hawk) saw a huge bird alighting on a rock oag on the sea, bitten shore of Korea. One of the sailors shot it in the left wing and a boat was lowered and the great bird captured, having fallen into the water.

Dancing Girls.

It was seen to be an eagle, such as is on the imperial flag of Russia, and the sailors shouted they had caught Russia when they captured it. It was sent to Saseho, where care was taken to keep it alive, and it was then presented by a naval officer to the emperor. All the people take it as an omen of good fortune.

I visited the Tenno shrine—the village god of Tsumima. I observed a hundred lanterns lighted and many a holy fire built. There were mothers and sisters and wives of the men at the front gathered together praying for victory. The sight thrilled me with awe and respect. It is the Japanese women after all, who are at heart the wonderful fighters, although the men be heroes also. I heard a voice crying, "Teikoku Banzai!" "Victory and safe return!"

Too Accommodating.

Reau E. Folk, state treasurer of Tennessee, went to Sunbright recently to deliver an address before an organization of Sunbright business men.

Mr. Folk spoke on the importance of affability and politeness.

"Nothing succeeds," he said, "like accommodation. Be affable to your patrons. Be cheery. Be polite. If you haven't got what the people want, put them in a good humor, anyway. Maybe, then, they will accept a substitute. Maybe they will buy something out of good fellowship."

"In your desire to accommodate, though, never lie. Never deceive. Never do as did a dry goods clerk last month in the town of Tazewell."

"A little girl," Tazewell went into the shop where this clerk worked (he is no longer working there) and asked for three yards of mouse-colored ribbon.

"Nightcap" Drink Is Good.

"Never go to bed chilly," warned a physician. "There is always hot water to drink when everything else fails, and that will do the work of warming up the stomach and sending a glow through the whole body. You can do better than plain hot water; keep a small bottle of capicum at hand, and eight to ten drops of that in a cupful of sweetened hot water makes an admirable nightcap. More than that quantity would be unpalatable for most tastes. Hot milk is an ideal bedtime beverage, and so is malted milk, beef tea or cocoa."

"Do you mean it?"
